Colorado News, Latest News, News

An 18-year old man who fell near Flagstaff Mountain Road on Friday night struck a paramedic trying to help him and was cited by deputies for third-degree assault.

The man had smoked marijuana and began to act strangely before he fell and struck his head near the 2600 block of Flagstaff Mountain Road shortly before

Of course I also expect @wonkblog to stop pretending that an outdated and flawed paper on cannabis and opioid use is gospel when much better and more recent research exists, but that hasn't happened either...

In an interview that is specifically about cannabis legalization and why a travel writer believes in it, I expect the reporter to be aware of basic facts about the realities of use elsewhere. Crazy, I know.

Perhaps the interviewer was aware that a joint is treated like a beer in some EU countries (The Netherlands) and like enriched uranium in others (France), but not knowing which countries Steves was referring to, thought it best not to interrupt. Interviewing != Reporting.

In so many cases, the United States is into moralizing and mass incarceration. In Europe, a joint is about as exciting as a can of beer. When I am home, I see people I respect smoke marijuana, responsibly, and it's a criminal act.

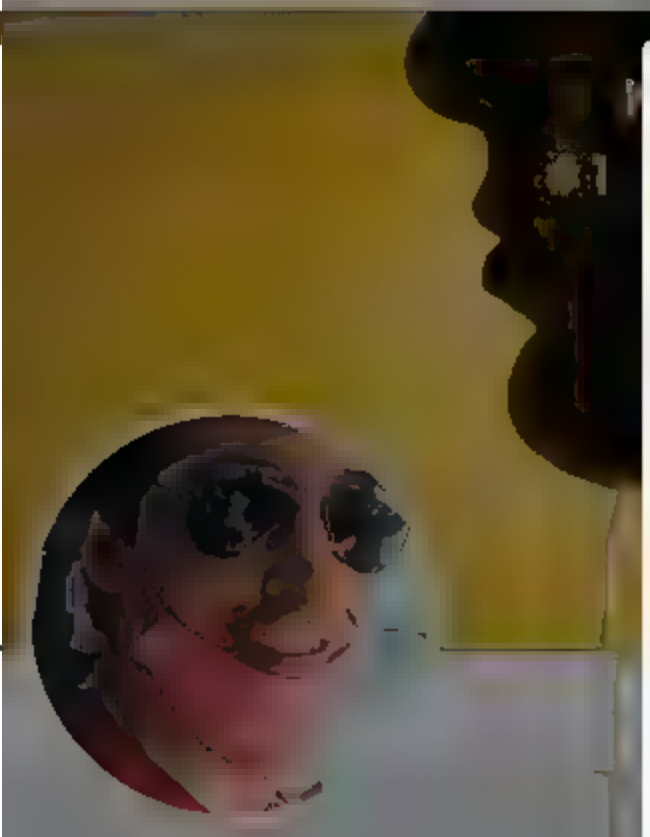
1/ My old employer @nytimes falls for the lie that the US is stricter than the EU on cannabis. In fact arrests are rising in much of Europe - and adjusted for use, which is much higher here, users are MORE likely to be arrested in many EU countries.

Q: What did the path from European travel expert to cannabis activist look like?

I've spent a third of my adult life in Europe, four months a year ever since I was a college kid. It is fascinating to see how different societies grapple with the same problems.



In so many cases, the United States is into moralizing and mass incarceration. In Europe, a joint is about as exciting as a can of beer. When I am home, I see people I respect smoke marijuana, responsibly, and it's a criminal act.

2/ For example, cannabis arrests rose 30% in Germany between 2010 and 2015, and 60% in Belgium. Just one more way the advocacy community - with the help of credulous reporters -has confused Americans about the realities of the drug - and how the world views it.

My casual observation is that the Alvord Lake area of San Francisco, once the most active outdoor pot street dealing area perhaps in the state, has about 10% of the selling activity that it used to have. Compare that to street dealing of meth, heroin, etc in SOMA.

Alex Berenson
@AlexBerenson

Replying to

Sure - one would expect street dealing to be way down post-legalization. The real questions are: how come it hasn't disappeared all-but-completely (especially for adults)? And how come it is still associated with so much violence?

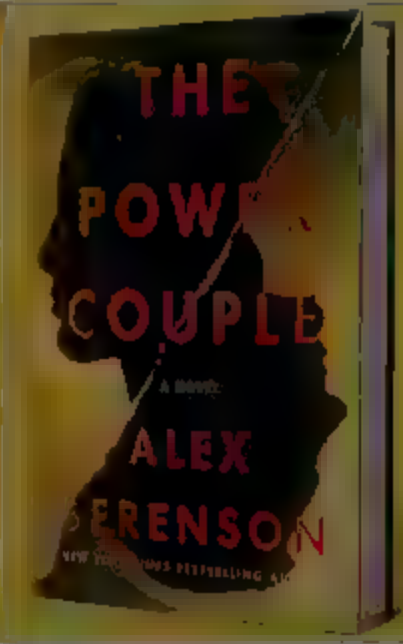
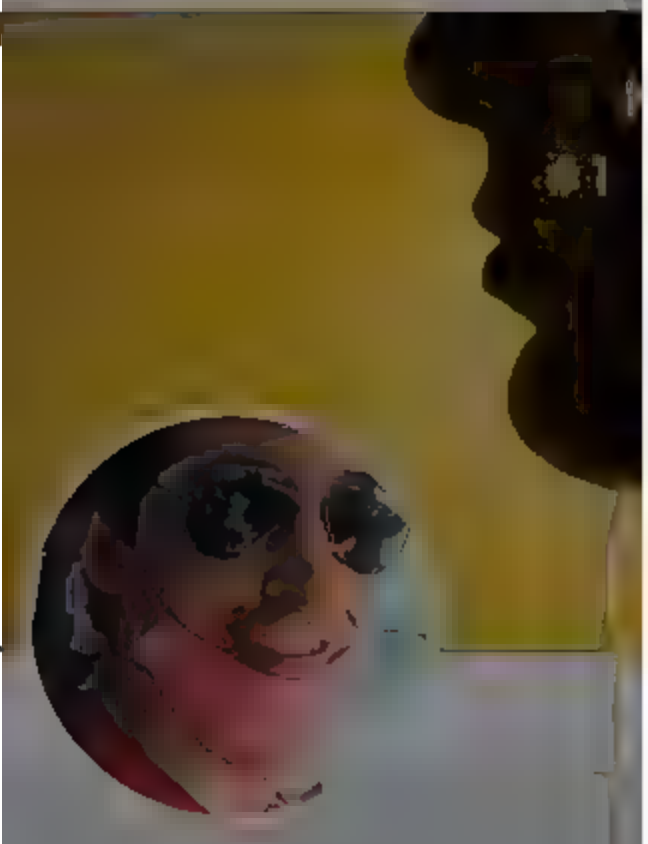
Replying to

My best guess is that smuggling pot into non legal States is what's driving the black market. As for violence... Why are guns still so easy to obtain for anyone with a pulse?



Matt Elrod @melrod42 · 29 Oct 2018

Replying to



Black markets are displaced to the extent regulated markets can compete. 100% displacement is unrealistic. Systemic violence is a consequence of high "street values," which is why we seldom see systemic violence in the coffee and tea markets.

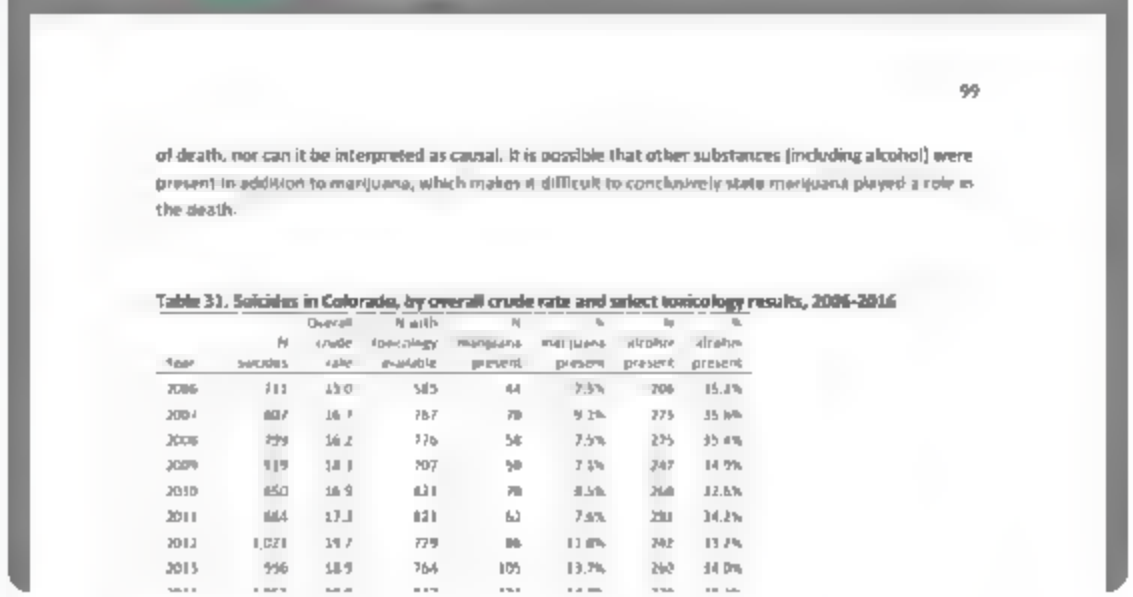
Some ugly data in that report...

Suicide Rate Trends



The trend in overall crude suicide rate[14] and information on toxicology results from coroners is presented in Table 31. The overall crude rate has remained relatively stable since 2012. The prevalence of positive marijuana tests increased from 11.8% in 2012 to 22.3% in 2016. There was no change the percent of deaths by suicide testing positive for alcohol. The 22.3% testing positive for marijuana in 2016 was nearly identical to the national prevalence (22.4%) detailed in a recent CDC report.[15]

The variable "Marijuana Present" could indicate toxicology tests were positive for Delta-9 THC, 11-OH-THC, or THC-COOH (carboxy), so this factor alone is not indicative of intoxication or impairment at time

[14] The crude suicide rate is per 100,000 total population and is not adjusted for age of death, nor can it be interpreted as causal. It is possible that other substances (including alcohol) were present in addition to marijuana, which makes it difficult to conclusively state marijuana played a role in the death.

Sad fact: legalization doesn't end the black market in legal states - it opens a secondary (violent) market for home-grown cannabis.

I hate to waste time engaging on this but I have to bc you are wrong on every detail - the data aggregates all four states. Alaska is not an outlier and in fact contributes least bc of its size. Further, the big rise in Alaskan murders came after recreational sales began in 2015.

If you're wondering, violent crime in the first four legalized states appears to be soaring again in 2018; agg assaults in Denver are up 17% y-o-y (!), murders up 10%. Seattle, Portland, and Spokane all show similar trends. I won't tell [redacted] if you don't.

Any life lost is a tragedy, but to put into perspective what a 10% increase of murders in Seattle is. Well, it's about more than 2, but less than 3 people per year. That's within the overall historical, year to year fluctuation and still well below historical highs.

Casual use will rise moderately. Heavy use will rise sharply. Prices will plunge; branding efforts will lose to low-cost THC concentrate. Cannabis psychosis and violent crime will soar. Bonne chance!

If you're wondering, violent crime in the first four legalized states appears to be soaring again in 2018; agg assaults in Denver are up 17% y-o-y (!), murders up 10%. Seattle, Portland, and Spokane all show similar trends. I won't tell @CoryBooker if you don't.

Any life lost is a tragedy, but to put into perspective what a 10% increase of murders in Seattle is. Well, it's about more than 2, but less than 3 people per year. That's within the overall historical, year to year fluctuation and still well below historical highs.

What's fascinating is that support for legalization has risen far faster than actual use since 2005; a brilliant marketing campaign rather than lived experience has driven the change in attitude.

Serous question, why do you data mining operators always try to find negative things about cannabis? We KNOW it helps people with pain and addiction, we don't need a study to tell us that. Prohibitionists NEED studies that further their narrative.

Prohibitionism is a serious mental health disorder. They enjoy tormenting people out of their natural rights. We have a product that is less harmful than alcohol, or gambling, many things. So we will stigmatize people for no reason but sheer dictatorial fantasy,

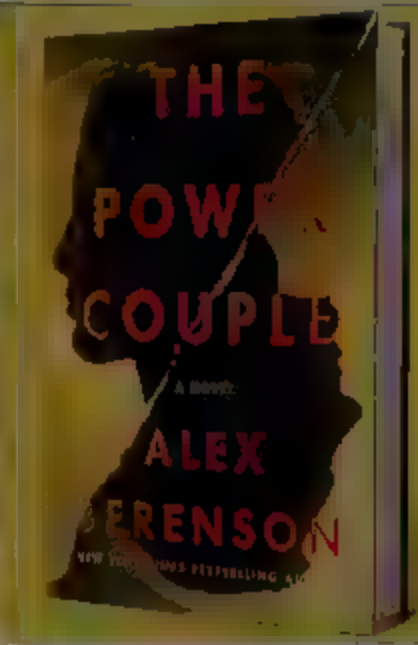
One of my favorite bits of Tell Your Children: when the national drug czar got high with the head of NORML. The 70s, man!



Since the 1950s, scientists had debated the "gateway drug" hypothesis, the theory that smoking marijuana raised the risk for the later use of other drugs. In the one-man sample of Stroup himself, the answer was clear. He'd started with marijuana and ended with everything else. He wasn't alone, either. NORML staffers joked they would soon be changing the group's name to NORCL, with the C standing for cocaine.

In December 1977, Bourne, the White House drug advisor, used cocaine with Stroup and other people at NORML's annual party in Washington. (Bourne always denied using, saying he had only "held" a vial of cocaine before passing it on. His explanation never got much traction. As the old joke goes, I don't do coke, I just like the smell.) Eight months later, the story of Bourne's use leaked to BTW - the last best argument that cannabis doesn't cause psychosis is that the US hasn't seen overall increases in mental illness despite rising use. Putting aside the fact that we basically can't count SMI - there are no registries - this data suggests that's no longer true.

People will use your work as reasoning for their positions. If those are based on sloppy conclusions that claim causation when the truth is only correlation, then it doesn't add in a positive way to the overall debate.

Based on how narrowly tailored Judge's letter yesterday was, if he has to talk to the FBI, the game's over. 1001 is the easiest crime to prosecute. Hard to imagine he'd subject himself to that jeopardy.

Oof! As a psychiatrist, I weep at the statement that "psychosis causes violence." This is a widely held but false belief. Most people with psychosis ARE NOT VIOLENT. This reinforces the already huge stigma associated with mental health diagnoses (hx of violence is #1 risk factor)

Alex Berenson
@AlexBerenson

Yeah, the unfortunate truth is that psychosis, especially untreated, is a huge risk factor for violence. I know advocates hate hearing it, but the facts are what they are.

A risk factor, along with other risk factors (such as hx of violence, age, sex, presence of anger, substance use, exposure to trauma), that is true, but different than proclaiming that psychosis causes violence. Like saying being male causes violence.

Angela Janis, MD, DFAPA @DrAngelaJanis · 25 Sep 2018
People with mental illness are much more likely to be victims of violence rather than perpetrators. Unfortunate when folks with a platform don't share the full story and try to sum up difficult interactions and associations to pithy summations.

If you can establish that the link between cannabis and psychosis is strong (it isn't) and that the link between psychosis and violence is strong (it isn't) and that the link between usage rates and legalization is strong (it isn't), you'll be breaking new ground.

Alex Berenson
@AlexBerenson

Replying to

As for cannabis and psychosis, the rate ratio is maybe 3x for use starting in mid-adolescence. The 2017 NAM report sums up the evidence nicely. I suspect that figure understates the current risk, though, because the new stuff has such a high THC-CBD ratio.

Replying to

Yes, chemovars high in THC but lacking in CBD and some terpenes (the sort black marketeers prefer and don't label) can trigger psychosis in those predisposed, as can stressful life events, like being arrested.

There is a correlation between substance use and mental illness, AKA self-medication.

Alex Berenson
@AlexBerenson

Replying to

Exactly. The cannabis-psychosis-homicide connection is even stronger than that 19.5 x ratio seems, because the excess risk is mediated by drug use, and the drug mentally ill people use most is cannabis. That's a strange way to define "self-medication."

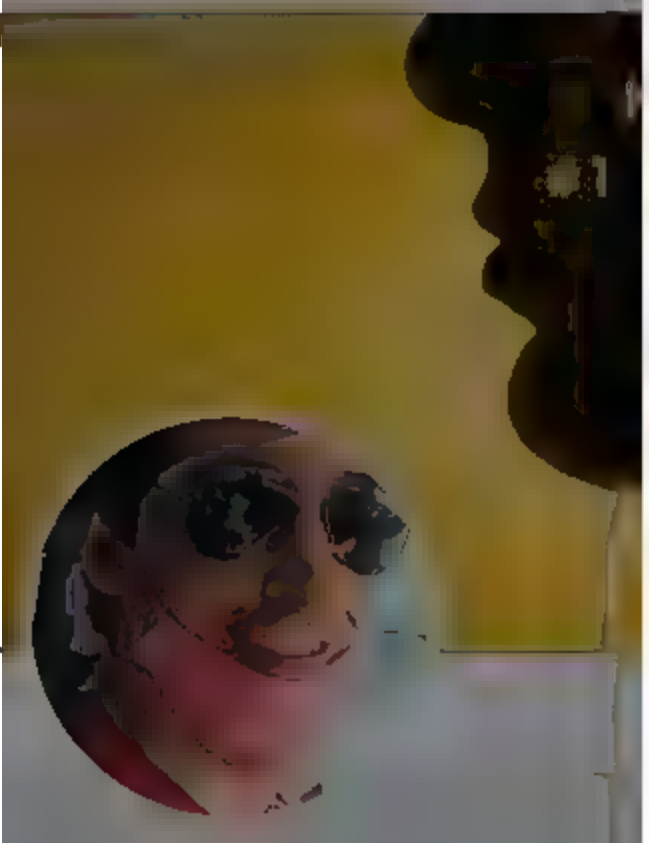
Replying to



CBD is anti-psychotic, so people self-medicate psychological problems like ADHD, PTSD, anxiety and depression with cannabis, hence the "correlation." The "SSRI->suicidal ideation->mass-shootings" causal arrow is more convincing. Still, we should protect minors from chronic use.

It was a blatant rip-off, and Flynn still couldn't do anything about it. I hope that changes for writers in the future. It's too hard to come up with something original, and their work and ideas should be protected.

And in a fully legalized market supply is basically limitless. Ultimately either legalization proceeds and prices collapse - or it fails and the company is in the business of selling an illegal product. Good luck either way, shareholders.

Obviously I can't have any positions in cannabis stocks - but the valuation here is nuts. Even assuming legalization proceeds, analysts seem to ignore the fact that pricing collapses post-legalization.

AA leaders historically opposed cannabis legalization - they saw how alcohol and tobacco companies targeted poor black people. Legalizers, overwhelmingly white, worked for a generation to undo that view. Time will tell who really benefits here.

Where's the evidence that these laws are racially motivated? Enforcement, maybe. Though even that is less clear than the topline numbers suggest. Black people who use develop CUD at much higher rates, which could account for much of the gap.

In 2005, the US and UK had the same rates of cannabis use; now the US uses about twice as much. Telling people about psychosis really does matter (which is why the US cannabis lobby won't discuss it).

Not-so-random police-related thought: Some big US departments are good about reporting crime numbers. Some are terrible. Example: Colorado Springs DOESN'T EVEN PUBLISH AN ANNUAL REPORT ANY MORE. Crazy.

Every department in a city of >50,000 should publish its Compstat data with at most a one-week lag, as places like Spokane do. They all have it. People have the right to know whether crime is rising or falling.

I realize no one wants to think about these cases. The natural inclination is to look away. But they are happening more and more. Cannabis-induced psychosis is very real - and psychosis causes violence.

Texas, Sunday: Blair Ness, 27, stabs his 1-year-old Ashton to death while screaming about the Bible. His girlfriend tells police he was "feeding their son" as she left for work, a few hours before the crime. What happened? From dallasnews.com:

> A forensic investigator found stab wounds "all over" the boy's head and body, police records say.
> Police said evidence indicates that Ness' attack on the toddler began inside the apartment he shared with his son and girlfriend, who was at work when the boy was killed. Officers found a large blood stain on the carpet in the master bedroom, a blood-stained folding knife and skull fragments near the bedroom door, the affidavit states. The apartment was smoky and smelled of marijuana, police said.
> A trail of blood led outside to the scene of the attack, where officers say several bloody kitchen knives in the grass next to a pool of blood.

Sadly, self medication by marijuana worsens symptoms of schizophrenia and brings it on faster if the person is susceptible . My adoptive son is now dead at 23. The differences in his brain showed up very early on. I am very familiar with this.

Yes - and schizophrenia is a terrible disease. We make sure that cigarette smokers know that tobacco can cause lung cancer; why don't we do the same with marijuana and psychosis? I'd trade lung cancer at 55 for schizophrenia at 22 any day.

8) But this is yet another case where marijuana and mental illness are hiding in plain sight in a mass murder.

Would you say that marijuana exacerbates pre-existing conditions or causes them in the first place?

The evidence is that it can do both. It is clearly extremely dangerous for people with pre-existing psychosis, though.

6) In men, schizophrenia usually develops between 18 and 25. But before patients become floridly psychotic, they are often "prodromal" - still able to function, but becoming more symptomatic. Cruz was smoking heavily and seemingly becoming sicker, a classic presentation.

Is it not obvious that pulling right-wing sites like InfoWars from YouTube won't reduce their reach? It will just make their viewers feel even more aggrieved and marginalized, and possibly lead the channels to become even more aggressive.

I think it opens the door for a true anything-goes social media and video platform. As bad as the content may get in there, I think the reason the big firms allowed questionable content on their platforms was to keep this from happening. It may be minor competition, but new.

Summer warning: KIDS DIE IN POOLS. Sunday our son (2.5) fell in our pool. Little kids don't struggle, they just go down like bricks. I dove in immediately, but he already was 3 feet down when I reached him. (Thankfully, I got him out and he was fine.)

There's a great deal of value in the concept of not being predictable. We are dealing with human beings, after all...even John Wells. He got things where they needed to be. Was his choice wise or the best course? Not necessarily. But I'm OK with improvisation from heroes.

For the TL:DR camp., this is the takeaway: "Make no mistake, information theft over computer networks is spying; but it has fundamentally changed spying's cost-benefit analysis. It is far cheaper, easier, and less risky for the perpetrators..."

A big thanks to @J_Sandford for this attaboy - esp. commenting on the complexity of one particular character. In most thrillers, his background and hard life would set him up to be a hero. But he's not. Because... even good men can make terrible mistakes.

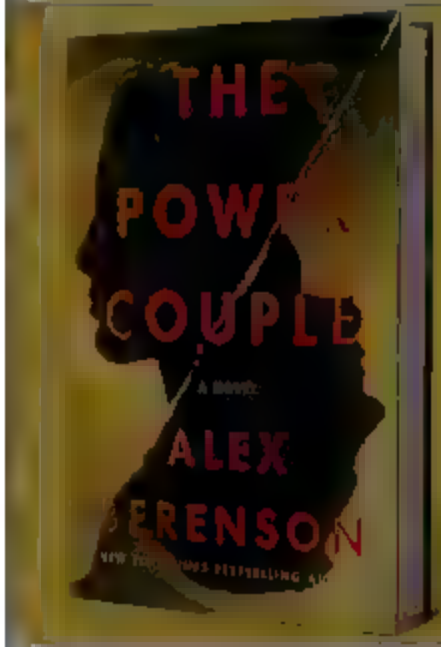
A heads-up for thriller fans: this is a pretty good week. I grabbed two books on Tuesday, the new John Wells novel from Alex Berenson, called "The Deceivers," and also "City of Endless Night," the new Pendergast novel from Doug Preston and Lincoln Child.



There are quite a few people who write back and forth with me on this page who seem to agree that these are two of the best series going.

I read "The Deceivers" on Tuesday, from front to back, when I was supposed to be working on the new Flowers book. I think it's one of the best in an excellent series -- and if you like Berenson, I think you'll have to read it because, while it's completely self contained, I suspect it's setting up another novel, and you wouldn't want to read that one without

Hello Alex

Is John Wells still a moslem? If he is, then he knows that allah says, in the koran, that all non-moslems are "...the vilest creatures in Allah's eyes."
(Google it! vilest creatures, koran)

Of course, if allah feels that way, then John must also feel that way about non-moslems. WAIT!!!! That means that John must consider all his non-moslem readers "vile creatures"! That's not very nice, considering they provide him with a cushy living. ?????

My final guess: HRC 47.2, DJT 44.5. She loses NH, noses out FL/NV and takes 303 EV. Thisclose.

I think NV/NH/FL are all tossups, so Hillary wins 1 or 2, and gets between 273 and 308 EV, point estimate 290.

Looks that way. I'm basically mirroring 538. I really hope she can win w/o a contested state.

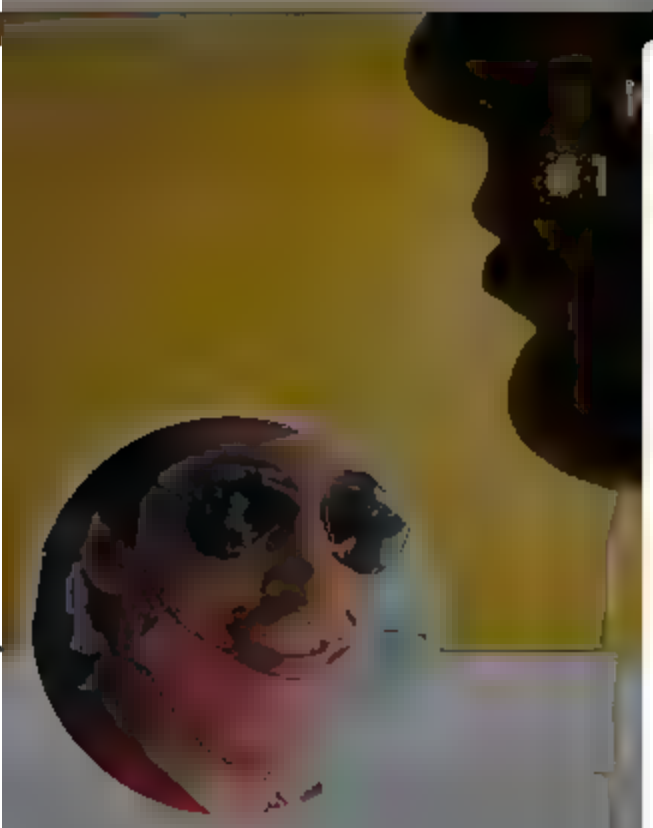
The @bmj_latest is now officially off the vaccine reservation with this letter warning of a spike in cases in India following mass vaccinations there. “After the initiation of vaccine programme, almost all countries experienced a sudden surge in transmission...”

Re: Will covid-19 vaccines save lives? Current trials aren't designed to tell us

Dear Editor,



Trial experiments and protocols set for COVID-19 vaccination did not take into consideration of many direct and indirect consequences of mass vaccination.

Here I would like to bring attention to an urgent and very important issue of its indirect effect. Apart from the direct side effect after vaccination, if any; the secondary effect that might be caused due to mutation of the virus after mass vaccination needs attention too. After the initiation of vaccine programme, almost all Update: The paperback is still "In Review." I have contacted @amazon. Hopefully I won't have to start yelling about censorship again - it's a distraction from real work. Meantime, you can continue to get the ebook for now.

> Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson
> So just as happened with Unreported Truths 3, @Amazon seems to be sitting on the paperback after allowing the ebook. We will see if they wind up allowing both or banning them...

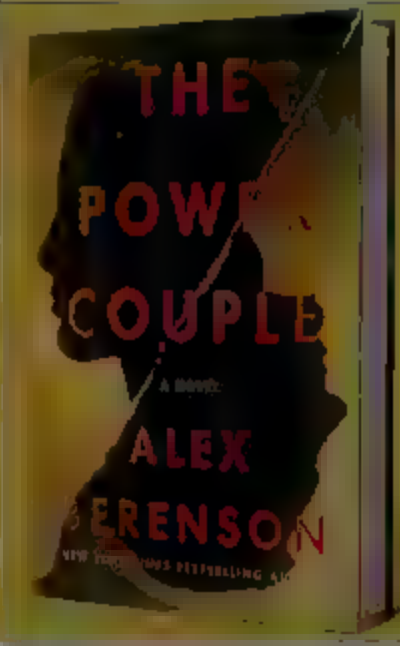
I find the media focus on the cases of "fully vaccinated" people who get #Covid to be very odd. No one should be surprised about this - both the clinical trials and the real-world data show vaccinated people do sometimes get infected.



The vaccines have much bigger issues.

In retrospect this looks right: the call to double mask backfired hugely. It was so absurd on its face - and presented with the same seriousness everything else had been - that it made a lot of people wonder about what they'd been told all along.

> Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson
> When critics look back at PANDEMIA and debate when the show jumped the shark, I think the two-mask episode will really stand out, especially on the heels of the Christmas special. You can only sneer at your audience for so long.

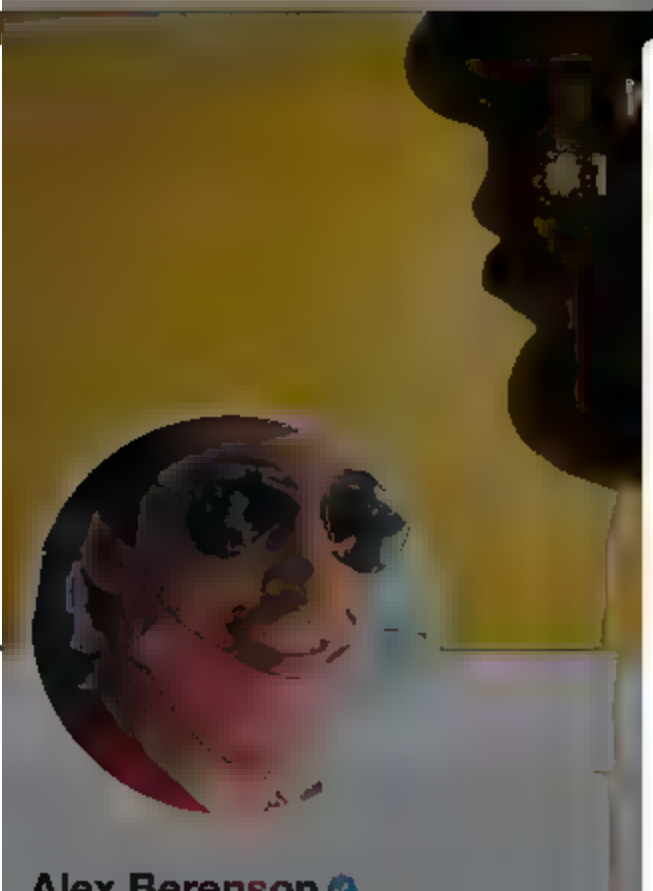
Good news, bad news:



The paperback is live on @amazon.
You still can't order it, though - they say it's out of stock.

1/ Remember all those stories last month about how Covid vaccinations had caused a stunning drop in cases and deaths in US nursing homes? Like @nytimes saying deaths fell 65 percent from late December to early February?

Spoiler alert: THEY WEREN'T TRUE.

2/ Turns out the decline was a reporting artifact. In English nursing homes are very slow to tell CMS about #Covid cases and deaths among their residents. You need to wait a month or longer to have real data. And now that we have it, we can see January was a terrible month...

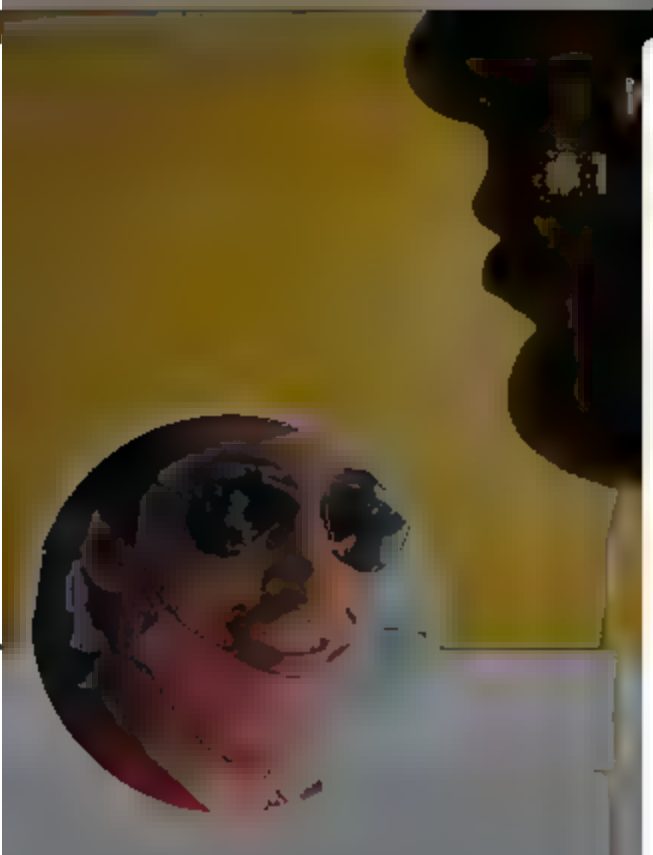
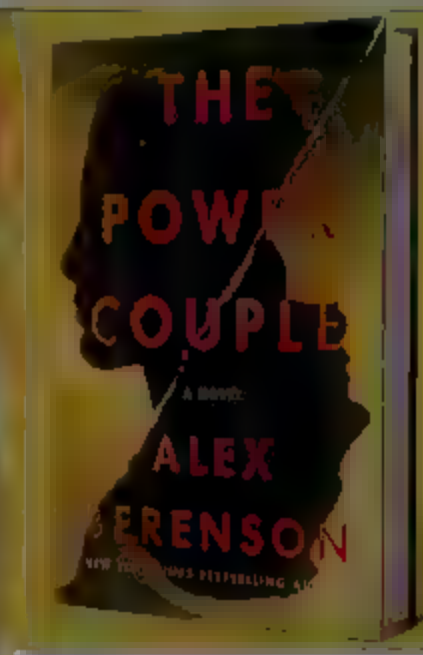
3/ Early February wasn't much better (down 26 percent from the peak, not 65 percent, and far above fall levels).



This isn't a surprise. Why would US nursing homes avoid the post-first-dose deaths that have come everywhere else?



I'm sure @nytimes will get right on this.

CORRECTION: I misread the data from Jan. 24 (5,036 deaths reported) as being the week of Feb. 7 - which as of this moment is at 3,062 deaths. That makes a major difference - it would be a 54 percent decline from Dec. 27, which is closer to what the Times originally reported.

I have DELETED the nursing home CMS data tweets because of my error. It is clear the articles overstated the decline in post-vaccine deaths, but not how much, and the figure I offered was wrong. I will revisit this issue in a couple more weeks when we have a fuller dataset.

1/ Speaking of nursing home deaths - @oregonian has a good piece on post-vaccine outbreaks in homes in that state, including the death of a fully vaccinated resident, other deaths post-first dose, and a home that avoided outbreaks until vaccinations began.

So this gentleman, whom I have never heard of, has blocked me. Probably so he can have the freedom to tell weepy stories about mask-wearing like like this one (which in the true Slavitt tradition is about 600 tweets, each more filled with self-pity than the last). Hi Dan!

I'm old enough to remember when @apoorva_nyc was doing everything possible to play up the risk of reopening schools, over and over. How'd that work out for everyone?

And why aren't other reporters asking these basic questions, which they (at least the ones who cover the industry) would FOR ANY OTHER DRUG? Why are vaccines exempt from all the normal rules of journalism and regulations?

I'm old enough to remember when @apoorva_nyc was doing everything possible to play up the risk of reopening schools, over and over. How'd that work out for everyone?

Your kids lost a year of school (and maybe more), that's how.

It's more subtle than that. I was talking to @elonmusk about this. Throw a million dollars at someone, maybe you buy him but he knows he's bought. But give him a $20,000 grant and a trip to a cool conference where he meets like-minded "thinkers" - now he's part of the ecosystem.

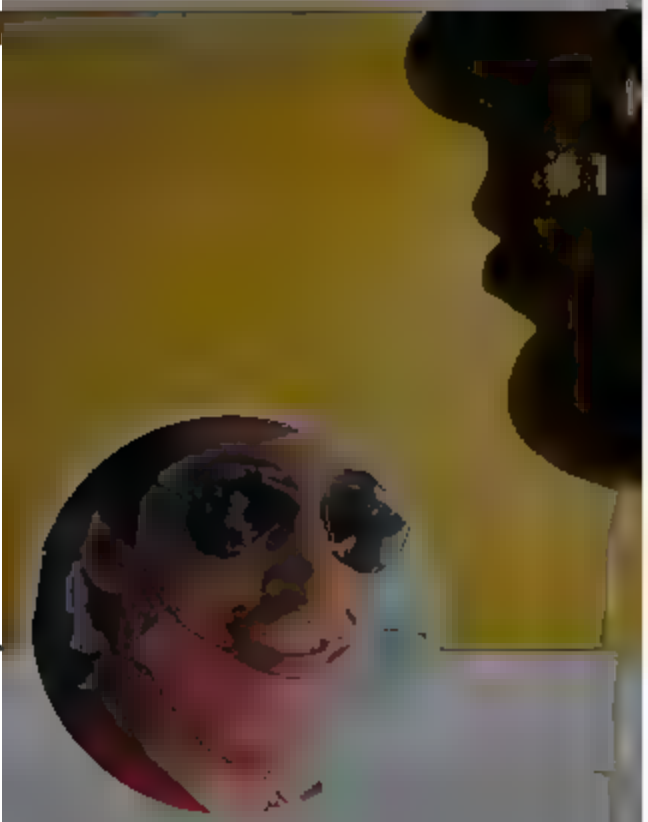
Remember when European countries wouldn't give the @AstraZeneca vaccine to people over 65 because they said it didn't work in them?

So last month! Now they'll ONLY give it to older people - it's too risky for anyone younger.

Were they right then? Or now?



Spoiler alert: both!

Hey, remember how well New Zealand handled #Covid?

Props to the Kiwis!

Only... it looks like their economy and hospitals are going down the tubes.

Hmm. Maybe focusing entirely on a virus with a 99.8-99.9% worldwide survival rate wasn't the best idea after all.

Yes. It was nice! Then a couple of idiots on Twitter picked at a question near the end to make seem like we'd been talking about conspiracy theories for two hours. Like I was supposed to shout down someone who had patiently waited to make a comment, however off I might find it...

So typical: this @npr piece on vaccine "disinformation" contains a flat lie, that only 0.0018% of "shot recipients have died sometime afterwards."

What? We have no idea how many people have died after being vaccinated. That figure is how many deaths were REPORTED to @cdcgov...

The better figure would be death reports per "fully vaccinated" person - that's how the companies and regulators count efficacy, so it should be how we count side effects. That's about 0.0054% - 3x the rate NPR offers, and 500x (yes, 500) the reported death rate for flu shots.

From a reader whose 18-year-old daughter was hospitalized this week for psychosis: "I had naively operated under the belief that today's marijuana was not too dissimilar from the pot I experienced in my youth."

Tell Your Children

Alex,

Please keep my name confidential in case you want to share any of this.

I just wanted to drop you a note to thank you for the work you've been doing, especially in the face of constant criticism. I started following you on Twitter due to wanting to stay informed about the vaccines. That's been very insightful, so thank you. But I also saw a recent tweet of yours where you shared an article about the increase in cannabis-induced psychosis in Colorado. I skimmed the article briefly and moved on. But it turns out that it was very timely and very personal information.

Our 18 year old daughter has been very open about her use of various forms of THC. I had naively operated under the belief that today's marijuana was not too dissimilar from the pot I experienced in my youth. To make a long story short, our daughter experienced a number of very debilitating psychoses, compounding the depression and anxiety that a lot of young people have experienced the past year. Fortunately, she is now well-supported and asked for help as she sensed she was losing her mind. This week was very distressing as she was whisked away to a mental health facility three hours away (all the other facilities closer to home are full due to the lockdown effects). Her primary care physician assumed bipolar disorder, but remembering the article you shared, I alerted to its possible misdiagnosis. I was stunned to see how many studies have been done that connect

The doctors and nurses taking care of our daughter are – thankfully – aware of these studies and are treating our daughter accordingly. She is responding well and we are hopeful that she caught this early enough that there will be less chance of long-term damage or stockpiled risks. One of the many scary elements of this experience has been the lack of the collective awareness of the dangers of cannabis, especially among young people. Being armed with the information I've learned recently has been extremely comforting and helped us to discuss the best path forward with her caregivers and to have some clarity about how best to support our daughter's path to wellness.

There are now 150-300 death reports to VAERS per week (2200 in ~10 weeks of widespread Covid shots).

Doesn't mean the vaccines are killing 150+ people a week. The number could be lower, if some reported deaths aren't vaccine-caused; or higher, if some vaccine deaths go reported.

Boston Children's Hospital now has over 50 kids and teens hospitalized or WAITING TO BE for suicidal ideation. Another hospital with no psych beds open.

Why?

The uptick from last year has continued. For example, Children's Hospital said on the day this story was published, March 25, it had more than 50 children through age 17 either admitted or waiting for an inpatient bed for reasons related to suicide.

WBUR's All Things Considered host, Lisa Mullins, spoke with three doctors who normal and very important, of separating from their families and developing an identity outside of that ... This is awful. @nytimes is changing articles post-publication without telling readers. The only word is Orwellian. What's happened to the place I was so proud to work?? How can it pretend to have the moral authority to hold anyone to the truth when it acts this way?

case for making 1619 the country's "true" birth year was "always a metaphoric argument." I emailed her to ask if she could point to any instances before this controversy in which she had acknowledged that her claims about 1619 as "our true founding" had been merely metaphorical. Her answer was that the idea of treating the 1619 date metaphorically should have been so obvious that it went without saying.

She then challenged me to find any instance in which the project stated that "using 1776 as our country's birth date is wrong," that it "should not be taught to you that 1776 is the year of our nation's birth. What if, however, we were to tell you that this fact, which is taught in our schools and unanimously celebrated every Fourth of July, is wrong, and that the country's true birth date, the moment that its defining contradictions first came into the world, was in late August of 1619?"

Now compare it to the version of the same text as it now appears online:

"1619 is not a year that most Americans know as a notable date in our country's history. Those who do are at most a tiny fraction of those who did tell you that

With more and more vaccine pressure coming from schools and corporate America, does anyone know what percentage of Americans who died of #Covid were employed at the time they died?

The figure for students in schools or universities is going to be well under 0.1%.

If you'd like to know how the US has reach 200,000 reported #sarscov2 deaths, the Milwaukee coroner's office is a good place to start. It reports the (anonymized) death certificates of #Covid cases. Just a few of the most recent (sorry about the glare):

1/ Let's talk Israel for a minute. Wow! Hospitalizations down 92% from the January peak; deaths down 97%! Positive test rate down to 1.5%.

Vaccines are amazing!

Except. That's not Israel. That's Los Angeles County (which has ~ as many people and a similar climate)...

2/ What LA County doesn't have, of course, is a 50+% vaccination rate.

This is not to say vaccinations may not have helped (once the ugly post first-dose spike is excluded, etc) - but it is to say that #Covid comes and goes in predictable and apparently climate-related waves...

3/ And at this point it is impossible to sort the effect of the vaccines from the natural Farr's Law curve. Only if a fourth wave hits will we be able to distinguish between natural and vaccine immunity (assuming the vaccine kind lasts).

Amazing chart here, especially given the supposed terrors of the South African variant of the don't-call-it-the-Wuhan-virus.

Israel has spent billions of dollars on vaccines to vaccinate more than 55%+ their population.

📌South Africa has vaccinated 0.3% of their pop.

Yes. It's also premature to talk about vaccine miracles.

The virus has not been kind to people who prematurely declare victory (or defeat).

"Pause" is so much nicer than "suspend."

Lil' Johnny's been paused from school!

Reminder: the @AstraZeneca shot is the one countries weren't giving to OLDER people last month. How times change. Works great if you get it exactly on your 65th birthday, though.

COVID-19 · Yesterday

Canadian panel recommends provinces pause AstraZeneca vaccinations for those under 55

Canada's National Advisory Committee on Immunization (NACI) updated its guidelines on the Oxford-AstraZeneca COVID-19 vaccine on Monday to recommend pausing its use in adults under the age of 55 until additional risk assessment is done. The recommendations follow reports from Europe of rare blood clot issues in some people after use of the AstraZeneca vaccine, mainly among young women.

1/ Okay, a bunch of countries have decided @AstraZeneca's #Covid vaccine is double-plus ungood because of a tiny ittybitty lil risk it will cause horrible deaths in healthy young adults.

But no worries about the @JNJNews Pfizer @moderna_tx shots, right?

Or is it the overproduction of spike proteins itself?

Cases of apparent secondary immune thrombocytopenia (ITP) after SARS-CoV-2 vaccination with both the Pfizer and Moderna versions have been reported and reached public attention. Public alarm was heightened thrombocytopenia following vaccination, 17 without pre-existing thrombocytopenia and 14 with reported bleeding symptoms prior to hospitalization were identified upon review of data available from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), agencies of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System (VAERS), published reports,[3, 4] and via direct communication with patients and treating providers. From Washington state: 102 #Covid cases post "full" mRNA vaccination, 8 hospitalizations, 2 deaths. Can we please stop saying vaccines prevent 100 percent of serious #Covic cases and deaths? It's never been true and it only confuses people.

Another great public health message!

CORONAVIRUS

First cases of post-vaccine COVID-19 confirmed in WA state. 2 deaths being investigated developing COVID-19 after they were completely vaccinated were confirmed Tuesday in Washington, according to the state Department of Health. Two potential deaths are being investigated.

In vaccine parlance, people who develop a disease after they have been vaccinated for it are called "vaccine breakthrough" cases.

DOH said it is investigating the 102 breakthrough cases which have occurred in people at least two weeks after they were fully vaccinated. Eight

The @stanford antibody testing is out - it estimates ~3% of people in Santa Clara County (CA) have been infected and recovered, 50-plus times the estimate of confirmed active cases. More evidence #SARSCoV2 is far more widespread and thus less dangerous than expected.

This article is a preprint and has not been certified by peer review [what does this mean?]

without seroprevalence data to inform epidemic parameters. We measured the seroprevalence of antibodies to SARS-CoV-2 in Santa Clara County. Methods On 4/3-4/4, 3330 adult county residents for antibodies to SARS-CoV-2 using a lateral flow immunoassay. Participants were recruited using Facebook ads targeting a representative sample of the county by demographic and geographic characteristics. We report the prevalence of antibodies to SARS-CoV-2 in a sample of 3,330 people, adjusting for zip code, sex, and race/ethnicity. We also adjust for test performance characteristics using 3 different estimates: i) the test manufacturer's claims, ii) a sample of 37 positives and 30 negatives controls tested at Stanford, and iii) a pooled analysis of both. Results The unadjusted prevalence of anti-bodies to SARS-CoV-2 in Santa Clara [illegible] The population prevalence of SARS-CoV-2 antibodies in Santa Clara County implies that the infection is much more widespread than indicated by the number of confirmed cases. Population prevalence estimates can now be used to calibrate epidemic and mortality projections.

As Cuomo Sought $4 Million Book Deal, Aides Hid Damaging Death Toll

Gov. Andrew Cuomo boasted, "I am not a superhero," in early versions of his book, drafted as his aides scrubbed a politically damaging Health Department report.

ALBANY, N.Y. — As the coronavirus subsided in New York last year, Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo had begun pitching a book proposal that would center on his image as a hero of the pandemic. But by early last summer, both his book and image had hit a critical juncture.

Mr. Cuomo leaned on his top aide, Melissa DeRosa, for assistance. She attended video meetings with publishers, and helped him edit early drafts of the book. But there was also another, more pressing edit underway at the same time.

An impending Health Department report threatened to disclose a far higher

Notably, total cases have fallen significantly faster than serious cases or deaths. No surprise there; the vaccines work best in the people who need them the least (at the cost of more severe side effects).

A big new wave that skips Israel (the current spike in parts of Europe/Middle East does not count as it is likely related to first-dose vaccinations).

The better question is: what will it take for you to admit I'm right? A rise in all-cause mortality? A "variant" wave in Israel?

HOW CAN THE COVID VACCINES BE APPROVED UNDER AN EMERGENCY USE AUTHORIZATION?

A) There is NO emergency. Not by any definition. States like Florida are functioning normally.

B) Monoclonal antibodies are adequate and available alternative treatments based on clinical trial data...

The protests are only beginning. Wait until May rent and mortgage and car note payments come due, or people realize their kids really are going to be denied schooling through September.

From a physician. He is right: the appendix shows 39 #Covid deaths in the 600,000 unvaccinated; 20 in the 600,000 vaccinated.

MORE IMPORTANTLY NO DISCLOSURE OF ALL-CAUSE MORTALITY IN EITHER GROUP.

None of the real-world studies have ever revealed that figure. Gee, I wonder why?

study post-EUA.

https://www.nejm.org/doi/full/10.1056/NEJMoa2101765

It shows that the vaccine has a minimal impact on disease. The studies read like something out of an ad agency, touting "90% effectiveness" etc.

The absolute benefit in risk is far less than 1%.

There were 39 deaths DUE TO COVID ONLY in the non-vaccinated group and 20 deaths due to COVID in the vaccinated group. I had to go to the study appendix to get this information, it was buried there where one had to dig to get it. The deaths number is on page 27

'39 20'

ONLY in the vaccinated group was 0.0003% and the number of deaths in the unvaccinated group was 0.0006%. The overall reduction in risk for COVID ONLY DEATH was 0.0003%.

Put another way, 29,800 people needed to be vaccinated to prevent one death from COVID during the study period. There were 596,000 people in each group.

WHAT I AM MAINLY EMAILING YOU ABOUT – This study did NOT reveal the absolute mortality figures in each group, i.e., deaths from all causes. THEY ONLY COUNTED DEATHS 'FROM COVID.'

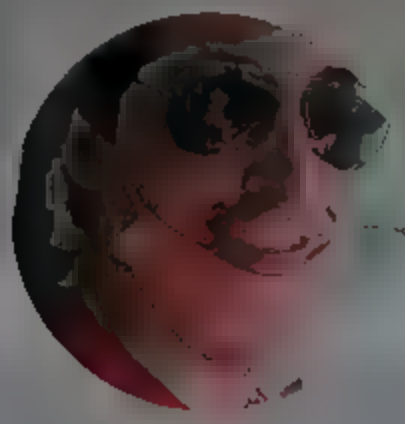
"Requiring vaccination proof before travel will save lives."

Yep, @Alyssa_Milano! Just like closing schools, travel bans, and lockdowns.

Trust us! Everything we've said about #Covid has been totally wrong and contrary to all previous recommendations, but this time we're sure.

Replying to @drdrew



Drew, I remember when you called this a "press-induced pandemic." I don't think you have a ton of credibility on this issue.

Requiring vaccination proof before travel will save lives. Most of the "out" groups will be due to vaccine inequity. Not passports. Focus there.

It was. Everything since has been media hysteria and PCR-fed death counts. Not one hospital system has been close to overrun (the original reason for the lockdowns); and nothing would have changed had we reopened everything that day.

I rarely state this position so baldly because people don't like to hear it, but it is unquestionably true; by early April anyone looking hard at New York could see the lockdowns and other anti-Covid measures would be far more disruptive and dangerous than the virus itself.

I think this is right - and followed with mass testing and lockdowns whenever a new case comes up. In other words, be China or don't bother. But even then nothing is guaranteed. Countries like Colombia locked down very hard and had lousy outcomes.

Wait, the same states where cases rose at EXACTLY this time last year are again seeing more positive tests? Regardless of mask mandates or school closures or modern monetary theory?

Why, it's almost as if climate is the main driver of the spread of #SARSCoV2.

So @jessesingal interviewed me in a rough-verging-on-unfair piece about Tell Your Children in 2019. I don't care. He's a real journalist. Trans activists slander him and would love to cancel him. Don't let them. If you care about the woke takeover of science, buy his new book.

4/ So at least one-fifth of the 378,000 reported Covid deaths last year were questionable, and another 21,000 reported only Covid on the certificates and so couldn't be judged.

This lines up nicely with real excess mortality last year (after lockdown deaths are removed).

Those miracle vaccines! Israeli data show they work just as well in the age groups of people who DON'T receive them as in those who do. And unless a lot of teenagers hang out in nursing homes, reduced transmission by vaccinated people is not the answer. Farr's Law wins again.

Who loves lockdowns? Who makes more money in lockdowns than anyone else?

Why, the richest and biggest companies in the world - the tech giants, the mega-retailers, and don't forget Wall Street!

Good times.

1/ Here's @mtosterholm warning "the very worst of the pandemic is yet before us."

Happily, he gave a time frame for this one - 6 to 14 weeks. 10 weeks, plus or minus four weeks for wriggle room.

Jan. 27 was 10 weeks and 2 days ago. Guess what's happened?

TL: DR - do NOT trust articles comparing side effect rates in VAERS and similar voluntary reporting systems to background rates of disease in a population, because voluntary systems capture only a fraction of potential problems, even deadly and obvious ones.

This amazing story has not gotten enough attention.

Back in January 2020, Beijing told Chinese expats to buy every mask they could find and ship them to China.

And they did.

Which is one reason Western doctors were so worried about shortages in March.

The best part is that China happily accepted donations of PPE from impossibly naive - I mean thoughtful and caring - countries like Canada even as it hoovered up all the masks, respirators, and gloves it could find.

Xi Jinping doesn't miss a trick.

Several parents today emailed this. A baseball camp in New York wants anyone 12 and older to be vaccinated against #Covid. Which may be tough since the vaccine isn't authorized, much less approved, for 12-year-olds.

2021 Opening Plan

In the best interest of our state, local community, and most importantly our employees, campers and their families, whose health and safety we are obligated to protect, Cooperstown Dreams Park has determined that it is essential to have immunization requirements and a reduced capacity to operate for the 2021 season.

Our plan is the only responsible course of action at this time to prevent the possibility of a camp shutdown and displacement of families due to COVID-19. This will ensure the necessary key elements of family participation, camper interaction and safe visits to the Cooperstown area.

All participants, coaches and campers 12 years and older must be immunized. Immunization requirements: COVID-19 (campers under 12 years of age are exempt, but must provide a negative test upon arrival), diphtheria, haemophilus influenza type b, hepatitis b, measles, mumps, rubella, poliomyelitis, tetanus and varicella a/k/a chickenpox. Cooperstown Dreams Park is hopeful that the vaccines will be available a minimum of twenty-one days prior to any registration date. Cooperstown Dreams Park will, if necessary modify registration date by registration date until a vaccine is available for 12 year olds and older.

Registered visiting family members 12 years and older are required

Another day, another @jnjnews vaccination site shot shut down for adverse reactions. This happens with the flu vaccine all the time, folks!

So much for the DNA/AAV vaccines being safer than the mRNAs.

RALEIGH (WTVD) -- The Johnson & Johnson mass vaccination clinic at Raleigh's PNC Arena has been put on hold "out of an abundance of caution" as of Thursday after some people had an "adverse reaction" to the vaccine.

Out of the 2,300 Johnson and Johnson vaccines administered on Thursday at the site, Wake County officials said 18 total patients reacted to the vaccine. Four were transported to local hospitals and fourteen others had minor reactions. The four others are being evaluated and are expected to be [illegible] have been released from the hospital.

All reactions occurred during the 15-minute observation period after receiving any COVID-19 vaccine.

The Johnson & Johnson vaccine is only one shot, in contrast to the two-dose Moderna and Pfizer vaccine.

In place of the Johnson & Johnson vaccine, Wake County officials said it will go forward with using the Pfizer vaccine in its place at the PNC Arena.

Side effect reports for the @jnjnews vaccine that look a lot like the problems the @AstraZeneca vaccine causes are piling up in VAERS.

The cases are striking because the US had given only about 4 million doses of the JNJ shot as of last week - far fewer than the mRNA vaccines.

1/ Vaccine advocates need to start ratcheting down expectations for the [redacted] mRNA vaccines immediately. The Israeli data is increasingly clear - the clinical trials significantly overstated their efficacy. Meanwhile the US side effect reports are ugly...

2/ Many, many people who get these wind up knocked out for a day or more. And some healthy people appear to have really serious reactions: severe anaphylactic shock, thrombocytopenia, heart attacks, even possibly miscarriage (LOOK AT THE REPORTS before you dismiss them)...

1/ I truly don't know what to make of this. Before I accuse @amazon of anything I would like to know if anyone else has had this happen.

A reader emailed that a printed copy of Unreported Truths 4 - bought from Amazon - has been altered so the first pages read "How To Scam."

My money is on some kind of mental illness. The pot is evidence of self medicating. Maybe it made i worse, maybe not. Maybe we'd see less of this if people had access to affordable health care and drugs. We'd need competent doctors too...

Either @meganranney - public health "expert" - is too dumb to read this chart right or she's misleading you on purpose. Let's hope the latter.

This does NOT say if you catch #Covid you have a 20% chance of a blood clot.

It says if you're HOSPITALIZED with #Covid you have a 20%.

Megan Ranney MD MPH @meganranney
3. Even if real, let's put it in context: if you catch #COVID19 you have an approximate 20% chance of getting a blood clot, according to a recent systematic review. (The real rate may be a little lower.)

But only about 1 percent of people who get #Covid in the US are hospitalized for it (the real number is tricky to calculate, since we don't know the exact number of Covid cases, only positive tests).

Thus your risk of a blood clot from Covid is closer to 20% of 1%.

Or 1 in 500.

Lying is not exactly the word I would use, though.

Apparently @mattgertz's preferred solution to vaccine side effects is to pretend they don't exist. Why should the peasants have the facts?

You idiot.

Blood clots are underreported to this point. I'm not even going to hedge with "maybe." They are.

Blood clots are not the only side effect, just the only one that is SO SPECIFIC that they cannot be ignored.

Where did your 1 in 150 chance of #Covid death come from?

> Nate Silver @NateSilver538
> I disagree. Say there's a 1 in 100 chance someone acquires COVID because of a delayed vaccine (maybe conservative in the US where spread is still quite high) and a 1 in 150 chance they die from it. That's a 1 in 15,000 chance vs. 1 blood clot death in 7,000,000 doses so far. twitter.com/kakape/status/…

1/ You will see a LOT of tweets like this today. Know that they are deceptive.

They compare a specific and dangerous clotting problem for the @jnjnews vaccine with general and usually less dangerous clotting issues for other products...

2/ The JNJ vaccine already has many other VAERS reports that include other types of blood clots and clotting issues (some relatively mild, some far more serious) as a side effect.

Even ignoring VAERS underreporting, the true rate is much higher than 1 in 1,000,000.

Twitter nonsense aside, I do not feel vindicated by this. I feel awful that young women (mostly) have died after getting vaccinated for a disease of minimal risk to them.

That fact is what deserves our attention.

Not whether telling people the truth will lower vaccine use.

The denominator is in the range 40-50 million doses - 20 million in Britain, 20+ million in the EU. A dose is NOT a completed vaccination, as the @astrazeneca vaccine requires two doses.

So the real ratio here is far higher than 1 per million vaccinations...

Rough math suggests that based on reported cases (an underestimate), the @astrazeneca vaccine has been linked to <>10 exceptional clotting events and 2 deaths per million completed vaccinations.

Remember:
That is only ONE risk.
The deaths occur in people at low risk from Covid.

This is as of April 4 and yet again proves how bad the underreporting to these voluntary side effect systems is. As of 10 days earlier, the EU was saying 86 cases (18 deaths) out of 25 million doses.

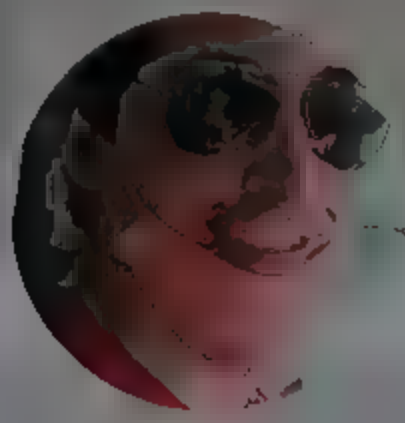
2/ They know VAERS has a reporting lag - and that cases will show up eventually if the class effect is real.

THEY DO NOT WANT TO BE IN A MONTH WHERE THE EMA IS NOW, REPORTING DOZENS OF DEATHS AND HUNDREDS OF CASES.



Finally they are acting as regulators should.

Okay the second paragraph of this @nytimes article is simply wrong and untrue and I hope the Times will fix it. I know the vaccine church is desperate to declare nothing to see here but making probably false statements doesn't help.

J&J Vaccine and Blood Clots: A Risk, if It Exists, Is Tiny

Out of an "abundance of caution," the F.D.A. is advising doctors to pause the Johnson & Johnson vaccine while it investigates extremely rare blood clots.

By Denise Grady and Carl Zimmer

On Tuesday morning, U.S. federal health regulators recommended a pause in the use of Johnson & Johnson's Covid-19 vaccine while they investigated six reports of blood clots in women ages 18 to 48. One has died, and a second is hospitalized in critical condition.

1/ Know how the vaccine church has been saying the issues with the @jnj vaccine were unforeseeable? How these events are rare and a big clinical trial revealed no signs of them?

Turns out that's... not so true.

A 25-year-old had a sinus thrombosis and STROKE during the trial...

...contributory effect of the vaccine could not be excluded based on FDA assessment of the clinical information provided:

A 25-year-old male with no past medical history and no concurrent medications experienced a transverse sinus thrombosis on Day 21 following vaccination. On Day 9 the participant experienced symptoms of fever, myalgia, headache, fatigue, abdominal pain, congestion and rhinorrhea. He tested negative for SARs-CoV-2 during this acute illness. Aside from headache, his symptoms improved. On Day 19 he experienced a tonic colonic seizure. A CT scan without contrast demonstrated a cerebral hemorrhage. On Day 21, a transverse sinus thrombosis was reported on a venogram. The participant underwent a thrombectomy as well as stent placement for stenosed right sigmoid sinus on Day 22. On Day 23 repeat venogram showed the presence of a new clot in the transverse sinus. A second thrombectomy with venoplasty was performed. Treating clinicians reported observing rapid thrombus formation during the two thrombectomy procedures that was consistent with a clinically hypercoagulable state. In their assessment, the transverse sinus thrombosis most likely occurred days before the participant's clinical presentation with a seizure; the seizure was reported to be a consequence of a secondary bleed caused by elevated venous pressure from the venous flow obstruction. Workup for hematologic and infectious causes of the thrombosis did not reveal an etiology. This event was initially thought to be related to the study product by the investigator and prompted a study pause. After thorough investigation and expert consultation no clear cause of the event was identified; however possible contributing factors, such as preceding infection and an anatomical anomaly, were suggested. The investigator's brochure and informed consent form were updated accordingly, and the study pause was lifted. The investigator and Sponsor's final assessment of this event was that it was not related to the study product.

A 30-year-old female with hypothyroidism, obesity (body mass index: 36.5 kg/m^2), headaches, anxiety and depression and use of multiple medications including medroxyprogesterone, experienced a pulmonary embolism on Day 3 following vaccination. The participant was hospitalized following a syncopal episode and CT scan of the chest demonstrated an occlusive thrombus in a pulmonary artery. Treating clinicians attributed the Sorry, wrong.

The SMQ for "embolic and thrombotic events" in the FAS demonstrated a slight numerical imbalance. Data through the cutoff date includes reports of such events among 0.06% of vaccine recipients (15 events in 14 participants) compared to 0.05% of placebo recipients (10 events in 10 participants). By PT, deep vein thrombosis (including PTs for "deep vein thrombosis", "venous thrombosis limb" and "embolism venous") was reported in 6 vaccine recipients (5 events within 28 days of vaccination) and 2 placebo recipients (2 events within 28 days of vaccination). Pulmonary embolism was reported in 4 vaccine recipients (2 events within 28 days of vaccination) and 1 placebo recipient (1 event within 28 days of vaccination). Cerebrovascular events (including PTs "cerebral infarction", "transverse sinus thrombosis", "hemiparesis", "cerebrovascular accident", "carotid artery occlusion" and "ischemic stroke") were reported in 3 vaccine recipients (4 events, 3 events within 28 days of vaccination) and 3 placebo recipients (3 events within 28 days of vaccination). Myocardial infarction was reported in 1 vaccine recipient (1 event within 28 days of vaccination) and 3 placebo recipients (2 events within 28 days of vaccination). One placebo recipient reported thrombosed hemorrhoids within 28 days of vaccination. Table 29 summarizes thromboembolic events in both vaccine and placebo recipients including investigator assessment of grade, seriousness and causality.

Hey, is it just me or did @moderna_tx fail to release any actual data in this statement about how many reports of blood clots (much less any other potential safety signals) have followed its vaccinations?

Seriously, this might as well say "Jes' trust us, folks!"

A comprehensive assessment of the totality of the available safety data for mRNA-1273 after over 64.5 million doses administered globally does not suggest an association with cerebral venous sinus thrombosis (CVST) or thrombotic events.

Analyses performed using data through March 22, 2021. Number of vaccinations was derived from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) website, European Centre for 1/ Reminder: the EU has seen more than 200 cases of these clotting/platelet issues around the @AstraZeneca vaccine (which is very similar to the @JNJNews shot). And they're no joke. They kill healthy people, and the cases go south remarkably fast.

2/ A second possibly related US death has already come in, btw. And though the story claims the woman's husband "does not tie his wife's death to the J&J drug," that's untrue. What he says, repeatedly, is that he does not know. Reframing his comment that way is rank propaganda.

Another terrible multiple child murder with a cannabis-psychosis link. The father knew what was happening. He still couldn't save his kids.

It is time for child welfare agencies to make heavy cannabis use in parents with serious mental illness a bright red flag for custody.

And this email shows why @US_FDA was ethically bound to make sure everyone knows the potential dangers. PEOPLE ARE AT RISK. This woman might have died if her physician hadn't ordered an MRI.

I guess the vaccine church would call that a fair price to avoid "vaccine hesitancy."

> Thank you so much for all you have been doing to shed light on this Covid vaccine issue. It is so important for people to understand the full picture in order to make the best decision for themselves. My husband and I are both medical professionals and advocates for informed consent. Yesterday evening, this issue hit home for us as my 36-year-old female cousin had emergency surgery to evacuate multiple clots to the veins in her brain. She had the Johnson & Johnson vaccine about 10 days ago and developed a severe headache a few days after. When her head pain was severe and unrelenting, she finally saw her family medicine doctor who ordered an MRI yesterday after seeing the news that the J&J vaccine had been paused. The MRI revealed numerous clots in her brain and she was immediately sent to a large hospital for surgery. So far, she does not seem to 1/ So a new study looks at CVST (the blood clotting disorder) rates in DNA/AAV vaccines, mRNA vaccines, and people with [illegible].

The study is half garbage and half VERY interesting.

The garbage part, no surprise, is the claim people with C-19 get CVST at very, very high rates...

2/ The reason that part of the study is junk is: it uses medical records to find people with C-19. BUT ONLY A FRACTION OF PEOPLE WITH COVID ARE TESTED, MUCH LESS NEED MEDICAL CARE. The study claims 500,000 out of 82MM (mostly) Americans got Covid from late January to late March.

A new study shows that the mRNA vaccines from @moderna_Tx and @pfizer are almost as likely to cause the blood clotting problems that have led to the crisis around the DNA/AAV vaccines from @astrazeneca and @jnjnews as those DNA/AAV vaccines are.

Remind me why we don't count cases in the six weeks prior to being "fully vaccinated" when we're calculating efficacy. If the vaccine effect is permanent or decades-long, fine. But if people need to be repeatedly dosed, the early infections matter hugely.

I have now heard from multiple people that VAERS (the vaccine side effect reporting system) is - to be polite - overwhelmed, behind on reports, and hardly functioning.

If the elite media were not desperate to push vaccines this would be a helluva story.

A reader pointed me to this paper from 2007. It is bad news for the @JNJnews and @astrazeneca vaccines (and the regulators who didn't notice it) - but at least it provides a theoretical differentiation between them and the mRNAs.

The side effect reporting system is overwhelmed.

The preclinical work was done in weeks.

The technology was considered experimental until last year.

Funny story. Know how @cdcgov just reported how many people have been infected with #Covid after being "fully" vaccinated? How they asked states to compare infections to vaccination databases?

They could do something very similar to track vaccine side effects.

If they wanted.

Just a reminder that #Covid infection, hospitalization, and mortality curves this year in Israel (80+% adult vaccination rate) and Los Angeles County (similar size, similar weather, 25% vaccination rate) remain indistinguishable.

I can't believe the companies selling mRNA vaccines - WHICH IS USED IN VACCINES RATHER THAN MEDICINES FOR CHRONIC DISEASES BECAUSE OF THE RISKS AROUND REPEAT DOSING - are now blithely suggesting annual or even semi-annual shots. It's like they haven't read their own trial data.

1/ The problem for the people trying to hide the side effects questions is that the system is too big and has too many leaks (aka honest people). Hospital administrators see system-level data; physicians talk to each other about unusual case clusters; and families will go public.

The background rates for CV accidents in the young are pushed up by drug use (smoke enough meth and bad things can happen) and the early deaths of people born with severe and chronic conditions. But in healthy people these are vanishingly rare.

If you missed this last night: the risk that the AAV vector @jnjnews and @astrazeneca use in their #Covid vaccines can cause thrombocytopenia has been in the medical literature at least since 2007.

That's, umm, 14 years ago.

Hey, stuff slips by when you're at WAAAARP SPEEEEEED!

While the denominator is as of April 14. The LOWEST possible baseline figure at this point would be the number events divided by number of shots given as of the last day a person who had an event was vaccinated.

Meanwhile, India is turning into another #Covid vaccine success story! On the left, vaccinations (up 7x since Feb. 28). On the right, cases (up 11x).

This has happened EVERYWHERE. It's no longer even arguable. Mass vaccinations lead to a short-term increase in cases.

A new paper shows wearing two cloth or surgical masks is as useless as wearing one! (Filtration was mostly in the 50-70% range - in comparison, N95s block 95-99% for a larger range of particles.) Regular masks are like umbrellas that block half the rain. You'll still get soaked.

Research Letter

Fitted Filtration Efficiency of Double Masking During the COVID-19 Pandemic

Emily E. Sickbert-Bennett, PhD, MS[1]; James M. Samet, PhD, MPH[2]; Steven E. Prince, PhD[2]; et al

Although adding a procedure mask (mean [SD] FFE, 61% [13%]) over the cloth masks provided modest increases in the FFE (mean [SD] range, 55% [10%] to 60% [14%]), the overall performance was no different than wearing the procedure mask by itself. In contrast, wearing a procedure mask under the cloth face covering produced modest improvements in overall FFE (mean [SD] range, 65% [5%] to 81% [6%]).

Discussion

Results

As shown in the Table, procedure masks worn singly by study volunteers showed a range of mean (SD) FFE between 43% (2%) and 62% (11%). On average, across all masks and volunteers, adding a second procedure mask improved mean (SD) FFE from 55% (13%) when single masking to 66% (15%) when double masking. Single cloth masks performed less efficiently (mean [SD] FFE range, 41% [12%] to 44% [12%]) than the procedure masks. Doubling a cotton mask improved FFE but could reduce

The other involves the @pfizer shot. It claims a child aged 2 died. No other info. But the report is authentic.

Definitely. The second one has a high likelihood of being a true death. That figures perfectly with the March trials, whereas they weren't vaccinating children that age that early for the other (January).

Objectives

As global vaccination campaigns against COVID-19 disease commence, vaccine safety needs to be closely assessed. The safety profile of mRNA-based vaccines in patients with autoimmune inflammatory rheumatic diseases (AIIRD) is unknown. The objective of this report is to raise awareness to reactivation of herpes zoster (HZ) following the BNT162b2 mRNA vaccination in patients with AIIRD.

Methods

The safety of the BNT162b2 mRNA vaccination was assessed in an

The prevalence of HZ was 1.2% (n = 6) in patients with AIIRD compared with none in controls. Six female patients aged 49 ± 11 years with stable AIIRD (rheumatoid arthritis (n = 2), Sjögren's syndrome (n = 2), and undifferentiated connective disease (n = 1), developed the first in a lifetime event of HZ within a short time after the first vaccine dose in 5 cases and after the second vaccine dose in one case. In the majority of cases, HZ infection was mild, except a case of HZ ophthalmicus, without corneal involvement, in RA patient treated with tofacitinib. There were no cases of disseminated HZ disease or postherpetic

3/ And when the case-matching method was used, the researchers found that nursing homes in 2020 actually had FEWER deaths overall than expected. This cuts to the heart of the with/from question.

Of note, this was NOT true for Medicare beneficiaries outside nursing homes...

Funny story. You live in Ohio or West Virginia. 20 years ago drug companies and the gummit promised a miracle: ~free pills, no pain.

Since then all you've done is watch people die.

Now they're back with a new miracle: free shot, no mo ro.

Any wonder you're "vaccine hesitant?"

Wondering what @cdcgov really thinks about masks? Their guidance on quarantining after exposure to someone with #covid explicitly states whether the infected OR exposed person wore masks doesn't matter.

My mask protects no one. So does yours. Thanks for clearing that up, CDC!

5/ Allen Luxenberg would like to know if his [illegible] vaccine caused the rash that at its peak covered 70 percent of his body. Luxenberg, 51, received his second Moderna dose on Feb. 18. About six weeks later, he woke up with strange bullseye-like marks on his hands and feet.

1 7 15

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson · 3 min

6/ An ER doctor said the reaction might be related to a heartburn medicine called Protonix and prescribed prednisone, an oral steroid. But though Luxenberg immediately stopped taking Protonix and started the steroid, the rash spread across his chest and down his arms and legs.

8/ Doctors began solumedrol, a powerful injectable steroid, along with antibiotics to keep the blisters from infected. Now Luxenberg is slowly recovering, though doctors remain unsure whether he has Stevens-Johnson or another skin condition called erythema multiforme major.

How obvious does reality have to be before it sinks in? If you are under 50 and I even decent shape the overall side effect profile of the vaccines (to say nothing of the tail risks) is worse than #Covid itself. It's not even close. And the healthier you are the bigger the gap.

An oldie but a goodie from @CNN!

Featuring lines like this, from @cdcgov director Redfield: "There is no role for these masks in the community."

And this: "To be clear once again, Americans don't need masks."

And this: "This is a psychological thing."

It is so clear: After the Russia and Ukraine stuff didn't stick, the media knew they were looking at four more Orange years. Then Trump handed them a bat and they spent eight months gleefully beating him with it. If scaring America was the price... hey, can't make an omelette.

Let me work through this, if I may: buying masks if you're 'merican means you're scared. But buying masks if you're Chinese or Chinese 'merican is part of your great patriotic duty? Or just a sign of respect for your family back home?

2/ And this has nothing to do with vaccines. Take a look at the course of the epidemic this winter in South Africa, home of the famed, umm, South African variant. Cases fell 95% from January to April. Ditto Ireland, where the British variant was a thing for a while.

3/ The variants are a useful excuse to scare people into getting vaccinated at a time when the ro is on the way out (except in places where mass vaccination campaigns are just taking off)... as well as to getting vaccinated again next fall.

VAERS now up to 3,486 post-Covid vaccine deaths - almost as many as have been reported for every other vaccine combined in the database's 30-year history.

Lucky us, EVERY SINGLE ONE WAS A COINCIDENCE!

Phew. I was starting to get worried.

> April 19, 2021. During this time, VAERS received 3,486 reports of death (0.0016%) among people who received a COVID-19 vaccine. CDC and FDA physicians review each case report of death as soon as notified and CDC requests medical records to further assess reports. A review of available clinical information including death certificates, autopsy, and medical records revealed no evidence that vaccination contributed to patient deaths. CDC and FDA will continue to investigate reports of adverse events, including deaths, reported to VAERS.

Reactivation of herpes zoster, not genital herpes, has been a rare side effect for some who received the COVID-19 vaccine, medical experts say

Medical experts and science writers are clarifying that herpes zoster – more commonly known as shingles – should not be confused with genital herpes, which is an entirely different virus. The clarification comes after some media outlets circulated a case report released by scientists for Oxford Academic's British Society for Rheumatology, which found that six patients developed a skin rash after receiving the Pfizer vaccine. Medical experts added that shingles has

As usual @jeromeadams is right. Not sure why conservatives would choose the Chauvin verdict as a a fight to have. Giving police officers the benefit of the doubt in split-second decisions is very different than trying to defend this kind of unnecessary cruelty.

> Jerome Adams @JeromeAdamsMD
> Posting this as it seems a lot of people need to hear it. 2 things can be true at once. George Floyd could've made mistakes- criminal ones- AND it can still be wrong for a government official to execute that person on the street. Floyd being wrong doesn't make Chauvin right.

I think this is a very, very good question... one that will likely never be answered. This is as close as I'll come to an outright conspiracy theory, but given the way the PRC behaves toward Uighurs, why wouldn't we at least consider the worst?

Serious question: what is BLM saying today if the officer doesn't shoot Ma'Khia Bryant and she stabs a young black woman to death?

We are on the road to paralyzing our police completely. And I know some woke types would like that, but the results will be disastrous.

A quick Compstat check reveals carnage in woke cities like Oakland, Atlanta, Chicago, and Philly:

Murders have tripled (yes) in Oakland this year.

Philly is on track to have 600-700 murders, the most in its history, and Chicago even more (summer is killing season in Chicago).

This trend started in 2016, as the move for progressive prosecutors and bail reform began to gain traction. It has accelerated ever since. Now the pandemic, BLM, and quite possibly the move to allow open consumption of a psychomimetic drug (near-pure THC) have it out of control.

Even @nytimes is no longer playing down the violence spike in New York. Unfortunately, since this article ran two weeks ago, things have only gotten worse. Murders have nearly doubled in the last four weeks compared to 2019.

Obviously, the solution is to defund the police.

A Violent August in N.Y.C.: Shootings Double, and Murder Is Up by 50%

The city recorded 242 shootings in August, up from 91 last year, continuing a summer spike in gun violence that has become an issue in the presidential race.

"In public settings" would appear to include "outside." So @cdcgov is saying the vaccine changes nothing, you still have to wear a mask outside?

Genius.

2: Lower PCR counts mean a person has a heavier viral load - and is thus both more likely to be very sick and more infectious. (That's why people with PCRs over 30 or certainly 35 don't need to be quarantined). These two should have been extremely symptomatic.

3: Instead, the vaccine seems to have protected them from feeling sick - but not from being thoroughly infected and potentially spreading the virus. THIS IS EVIDENCE FOR A POSSIBLE MAREK'S DISEASE OUTCOME, where vaccinated people spread the virus aggressively to the unvaccinated.

Science Jul 27, 2015 3:01 PM EDT

The deadliest strains of viruses often take care of themselves — they flare up and then die out. This is because they are so good at destroying cells and causing illness that they ultimately kill their host before they have time to spread.

But a chicken virus that represents one of the deadliest germs in history breaks from this conventional wisdom, thanks

VAERS jumped to 86,000 #Covid reports today. That's up 18,000 in a week, but the backlog is clearly huge and probably still getting worse. (Europe, which has given 1/2 as many doses, has 300,000+ reports.)

How does a safety system catch signals that are waiting to be processed?

OpenSea only takes Ethereum. I'm not sure why. It seems to be the most prominent auction site so that's what I used. But maybe that was a mistake?

VAERS reports a breastfeeding five-month old infant has died of TTP - a rare clotting disorder linked to, yes, low platelets. He became ill one day after his mother received her second @pfizer shot.

This is an authentic and highly detailed report.

Adverse Event Description

Patient received second dose of Pfizer vaccine on March 17, 2020 while at work. March 18, 2020 her 5 month old breastfed infant developed a rash and within 24 hours was inconsolable, refusing to eat, and developed a fever. Patient brought baby to local ER where assessments were performed, blood analysis revealed elevated liver enzymes. Infant was hospitalized but continues to decline and passed away. Diagnosis of TTP. No known allergies. No new exposures aside from the mother's vaccination the previous day.

To @pfizer @cdcgov @US_FDA - someone needs to comment on this. Is it being investigated? The baby died more than a month ago, the report is three weeks old. Why wasn't this disclosed earlier?

5/ It is possible the attention paid to the JNJ clots since last Tuesday accounts for part of the difference, but that's a HUGE sample size and a big discrepancy. A quick Fisher's exact test shows there is almost no possibility it is due to chance.

The vaccine church likes to pretend VAERS is untrustworthy. In fact VAERS is the only reason we know about the @jnjnews clots; the more active @cdcgov v-safe system didn't find them and the clinical trial was worse - JNJ bluffed @us_fda into ignoring a case of thrombocytopenia.

VAERS is balky and not fully reliable - but if anything the errors are likely to occur on the side of omission. The truth is @cdcgov could create a much better automated records-matching system (it's pretty good at tracking #Covid cases, isn't it?). But it won't. I wonder why.

If you are under 50: a reminder that the @jnjnews vaccine has about twice as many life-threatening events or deaths per shot reported to VAERS as the mRNA vaccines, which are themselves off the charts compared to the flu vaccines.

2: Because the safety picture is ALL ABOUT THE PIVOTAL TRIALS. The preclinical work was rushed, to be generous, and the dose-ranging work even more.

But what if the trials weren't big enough? They didn't have enough old people. Maybe they didn't have enough young ones either.

persons in the general community to reduce their susceptibility (Figure 2). Moreover, as with hand hygiene, face masks might be able to reduce the transmission of other infections and therefore have value in an influenza pandemic when healthcare resources are stretched.

It is essential to note that the mechanisms of person-to-person transmission in the community have not been fully determined. Controversy remains over the role of transmission through fine-particle aerosols (2,22). Transmission by indirect contact requires transfer of viable virus from respiratory mucosa onto hands and other surfaces, survival on those surfaces, and successful inoculation into the respiratory mucosa of another person. Although these measures have mechanistic support based on our knowledge of how influenza is transmitted from person to person, randomized trials of hand hygiene and face masks have not demonstrated protection against laboratory-confirmed influenza, with 1 exception (18). We identified only 2 RCTs on environmental cleaning and no RCTs on cough etiquette.

Hand hygiene is a widely used intervention and has been shown to effectively reduce the transmission of gastrointestinal infections and respiratory infections (26). However, in our systematic review, updating the findings of Wong et al. (8), we did not find evidence of a

2: Because the safety picture is ALL ABOUT THE PIVOTAL TRIALS. The preclinical work was rushed, to be generous, and the dose-ranging work even more.

But what if the trials weren't big enough? They didn't have enough old people. Maybe they didn't have enough young ones either.

Hey @EM_RESUS (Dr. Ghali) - quick question. I see the Kentucky medical licensing board currently lists you as an "inactive physician" - which appears to mean you have failed to renew your license and shouldn't be practicing. Could that be why your patients aren't getting tests?

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

BTW: I am really not sure what @amazon is doing with Part 3 at this point. The ebook is for sale again, but the paperback remains in limbo (the paperback was rejected first this afternoon).

I assume this is just a technical delay at this point, but who knows?

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

Relative to the number of shots given, reports for overall deaths, life-threatening, and serious events in people under 50 are coming in much faster for the JNJ vaccine than the mRNAs.

1/ Stunningly, this does not seem to be true for the age of participants. I looked again at the FDA and EMA books and the NEJM paper for the @pfizer vaccine and couldn't find a detailed breakdown. (If I missed it I'm sure someone will tell me.)

In big drug trials this is far less likely because everyone enrolled should be reasonably similar (statin trials, for example). But this trial covered EVERYONE.

CORRECTION HERE (it actually makes the point even more) - 3,200 in that group, NOT 2,200. So about 800 per year of age, not 550. Which foots very well with the fact the 56-64 grouping had roughly 8200 people in all (900 a year).

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

Fun fact: this @cdcgov statement is a lie, and CDC needs to stop making it. Their own experts have now acknowledged a link between the @jnjnews vaccine and deaths. They can say rare or very rare or whatever they like, but they can't say no deaths. They sure can't say no evidence.
